(Com) Rexbury, May 15, 1869.

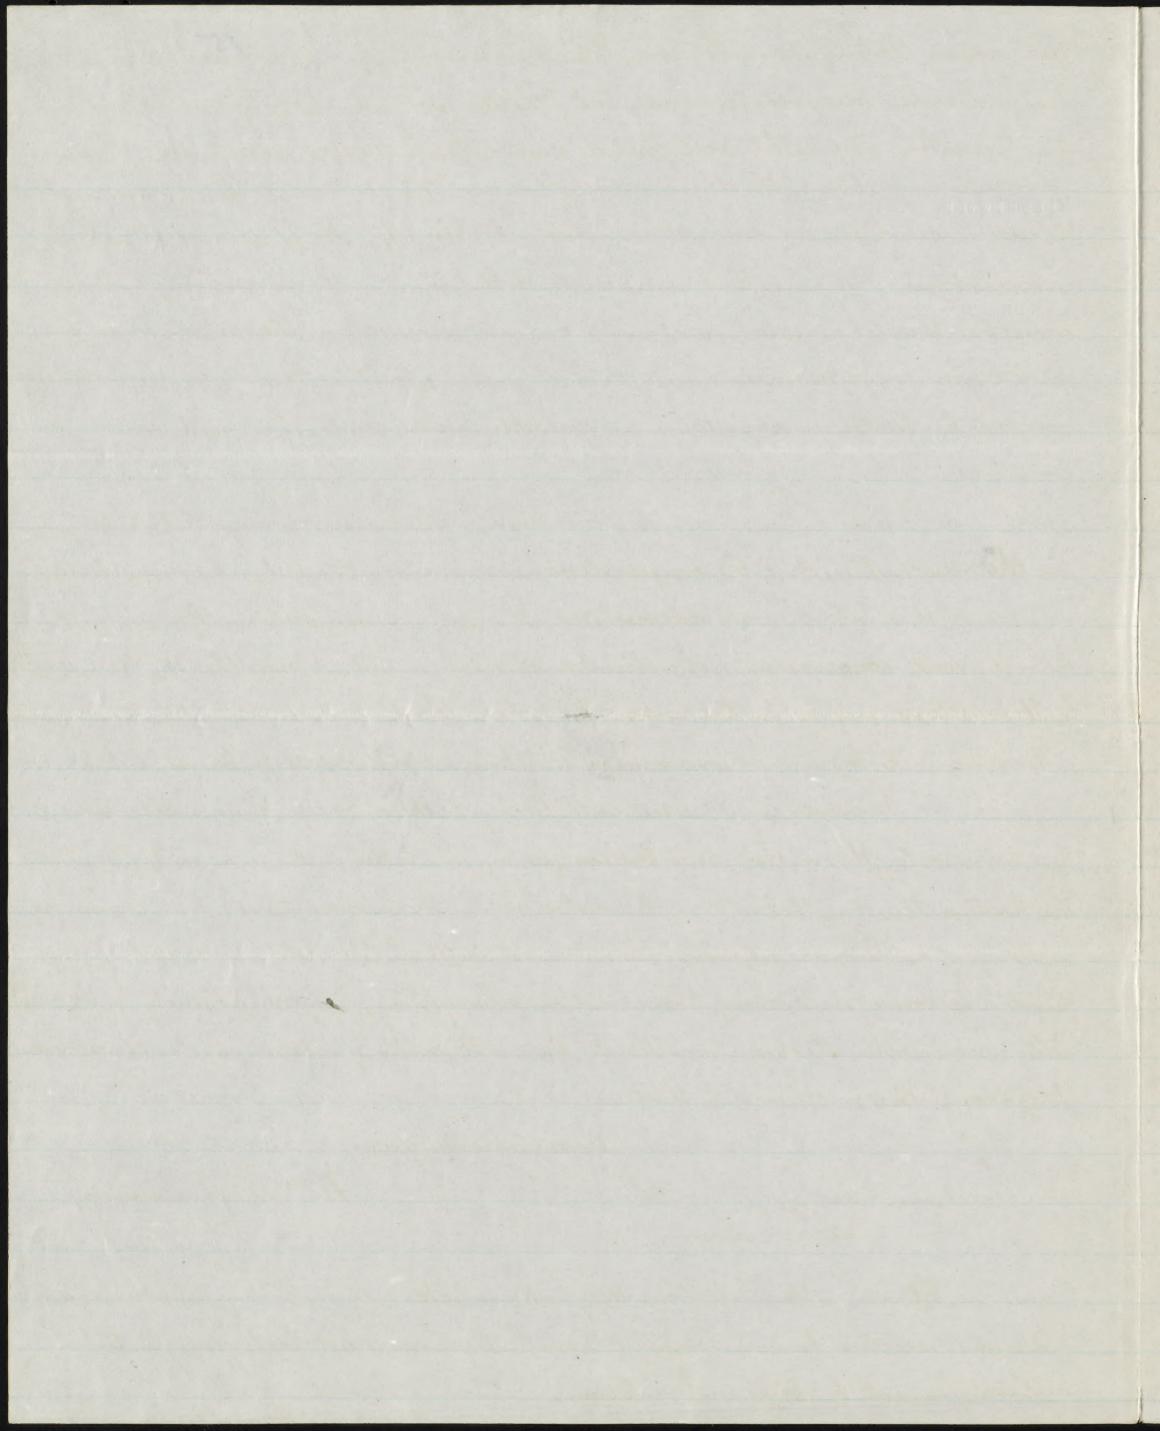

Dear friend May:

you inquire where It Lees is, and how he is to be addressed, I can not give you any definite information about his movements. A few days ago, he attended a meeting of the National Temperance Usrion in New York, and may yet be in that city, but he is more probably "on the wing". He is, however, to have a public reception in Boston, Anniversary I reck, on the part of the friends of Temperance, and I have engaged to speak, with others, on the occasion. I trust the will be able to attend the Quarterly Temperance Meeting at Leicester, June 3d, in accordance with your suggestion, and will surge him to do so when I see him. Terhaps if you should address a letter of invitation to him, to the case of Hon, J. M. Usher, Editor of The Nation", Boston, it would speedly reach him. Perhaps no man living is so thoroughly equipped for the elucidation and defence of the Temperance cause, on a radical basis, as himself. He is a veteran in its service, and deserves as warm a welcome as can be given him.

I see that he was one of the speakers at the anniversary of the American A. S. Society in Newyork, last week. But this was not to take sides, of course, The "managers" know how to take advantage of new corners from the other side of the Attantic.

While Ir d, is to be excused in this matter, what shall ever their or say of How. Henry Wilson, after the many cruel assaults upon himby M.P. and the Stand. and, voluentarily attending the meeting, and making a speech expressive of his sense of the importance of the Society continuing its existence? Surely, this is not magnassissity, but a lack of self-respect whin to pusillanimisty, Besides, he knows that the Society exerts no appreciable influence upon public sentiment in the present state of the country.

home in visiting the Mc Kims, and Wendell and Lacy, at the Park in Crange, N. J. I felt all the better for it. I went partly for the accommodation of Rogers, the artist, who is producting a group consisting of a Jugitive clave mother with her babe in her arms, Henry Ward Beecher, Whittier and myself. I gave him several sittings; Beecher hus given himone; but Whitteer will have to be got at through his photographs, The artist will find it more difficult to get a seatisfactory likeness of one than of either of the others; moinly because the spectacles will be missing. But The will succeed as a whole most creditally to himself. He is as modest as he is meritorious, The very first group he modelled was a stave auction; and this was when the act required great moral courage, especially on the part of a young man just beginning a professional life, and dependent upon it for bread, He will probably complete his latest group in the course of another month. I wish trim all success for his own sake,

The Sunday I passed in New York, I went to hear O. 13. Frollingham, in the new heell which the congregation have decided to very, having sold their church edifice to pecuniary advantage. The day was very storny, the rain falling heavily, and, consequently, the attendance was small. It was the first time the hall had been occupied for that surpose to stoke without manuscript or notes, standing out side of the desk. His sermon was redical in its time, and appropriate to the occasion.

That evening I passed with Thebe and Alice Carey. Amongothers present were baryenter, the artist, and Horace Greeley. The latter metime as cordially as though he had, a few days before, complimented one in the highest terms in the Tiebune, instead of holding me up, with other Massachusetts abolitionists, (on account of my free trade views, ) as seeking the abolition of every thing, from Christianity downwards! This was a little cheeky - was it not gusun to. Anthony entered just as It ad risen to leave. I did not tarry on that accorent.

Rev. Samuel May, Je Loicester, Mass.

Affectionalely yours, Mm. Lloyd Garrison.

P. S. Mr Villard and Frank tell me they met you in the city yesterday, and that you return to Leicester to day. I regret to hearthat you were not feeling very well. Loving regards to wife and children,

Roxbury, May 1869
